The Royal Niger Company was formed in 1886 after British merchant George T. Goldie organised the already active United Africa Company and in effect took personal control of the Lower Niger River. Goldie and his agents had penetrated into the territory of the Benue and Niger Rivers after it had been allocated to Britain at the Berlin Conference, 1884-1885.

Januar 1900 die Royal Niger Company ihre Territorien für die Summe von £ 865.000 an die britische Regierung ab. Die erhaltenen Gebiete wurden, zusammen mit dem Küsten-Protektorat, das schon in britischem Besitz war, in die Protektorate Nord-und Südnigeria aufgeteilt; der britische Kolonialminister Joseph Chamberlain wurde einer der Haupteigentümer der Company.
