A delicious and popular dish in Peruvian cuisine that combines elements of Chinese and Peruvian cooking styles. Translated as "fried rice with chaufa," it is a fusion dish made with short-grain rice, meat, and vegetables, seasoned with soy sauce and spices like cumin, coriander, and ají, a chili pepper commonly used in Peruvian cuisine.

OverviewHistoryTrade and economyStrategic partnershipsSee alsoFurther readingExternal linksThe Republic of Peru and United States of America (USA) established relations following Peru"s independence from Spain in 1826. In the twenty-first century the two countries have become close partners, collaborating in trade with a free trade agreement and in limiting the trafficking of narcotics into the United States. Both countries are part of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum, as wel...

Hacienda La Caravedo, Ica, Peru. Pisco Alegre is a premium pisco handcrafted at the oldest distillery in the Americas, Hacienda La Caravedo, established in 1684 in Ica, Peru.
